

MORE ABOUT MOM
Museum of Motherhood

Our mission is to elucidate the art, science, and history of mothers from a multicultural perspective.

The life of our museum is centered on the community of creators, families, and students who engage with MOM's cultural presentations, education, and exhibitions for the purposes of increased awareness, inspiration, and opportunity.

The goal of the Museum of Motherhood is to serve populations within the academic, social, and intersectional community both online and in-person. Our visitors and volunteers have included young students age 16-21, graduate students, doctors, doulas, women & mothers, feminists, single mothers, grandmothers, non-breeder advocates, single men, fathers, artists, nuns, Doe-fund workers, babies, artists, trans friends, and intellectuals. We have pioneered programs in social justice with the Bronx Defenders (New York City), Saving Mothers (International), and Tampa Bay Breastfeeding Coalition (Florida) to name a few.

Until the Museum of Motherhood, no place on Earth collected, preserved, and disseminated information and artifacts about the many roles of mothers, and the many types of family. Many museums are well presented, educational, and entertaining. Yet, in addition, how many discuss the historical contributions of women's labor, the breakthrough science of procreation, and art made from the maternal perspective.

Our scope is uniquely comprehensive and focused.

We have actively and successfully organized pop-up exhibits on the Upper East Side of NY, multiple university settings, and a variety of cities and work each year to organize residency opportunities, internships, conferences, and exhibits.

The need is great. Our plans include raising funds for a next-stage building to house the Museum of Motherhood. Business plans are available upon request. We envision:
